DETAILED ACTION

An examination of this application reveals that applicant is unfamiliar with patent prosecution procedure. While an inventor may prosecute the application, lack of skill in this field usually acts as a liability in affording the maximum protection for the invention disclosed. Applicant is advised to secure the services of a registered patent attorney or agent to prosecute the application, since the value of a patent is largely dependent upon skilled preparation and prosecution. The Office cannot aid in selecting an attorney or agent.

Applicant is advised of the availability of the publication "Attorneys and Agents Registered to Practice Before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office." This publication is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Drawings

This application has been filed with informal drawings which are acceptable for examination purposes only. Formal drawings will be required when the application is allowed.

Specification

The use of the trademark Velcro has been noted in this application. It should be capitalized wherever it appears and be accompanied by the generic terminology.

Although the use of trademarks is permissible in patent applications, the proprietary nature of the marks should be respected and every effort made to prevent their use in any manner which might adversely affect their validity as trademarks.

The term "hook and loop fastener" is an acceptable generic term for use when describing the above trademark.

The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: the blanket dimensions and material set forth in the claim should be added to the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 1 is rejected as failing to define the invention in the manner required by 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph.

The claim(s) are narrative in form and replete with indefinite and functional or operational language. The structure which goes to make up the device must be clearly and positively specified. The structure must be organized and correlated in such a manner as to present a complete operative device. The claim(s) must be in one sentence form only. Note the format of the claims in the patent(s) cited.

~~From the way in which the claim is written it is unclear if it is drawn to an article (i.e., the~~ blanket) or a method (i.e., a method of using a blanket). The claim can only be drawn to one of the above differing types of invention, and can not mix elements of the two in an unclear fashion.

Claim 1 recites the limitation "The pouches for the weights" in line 10. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim 1 recites the limitation "The Velcro lengths" in line 14. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim 1 contains the trademark/trade name Velcro. Where a trademark or trade name is used in a claim as a limitation to identify or describe a particular material or product, the claim does not comply with the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph. See Ex parte Simpson, 218 USPQ 1020 (Bd. App. 1982). The claim scope is uncertain since the trademark or trade name cannot be used properly to identify any particular material or product. A trademark or trade name is used to identify a source of goods, and not the goods themselves. Thus, a trademark or trade name does not identify or describe the goods associated with the trademark or trade name. In the present case, the trademark/trade name is used to identify/describe a particular brand of hook and loop fastener material and, accordingly, the identification/description is indefinite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 1, as best understood, is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Wong (US 5,499,411). Wong shows a blanket 10 that comprises a textile body 12 with weight retaining pockets 14 placed at each of the corners of the blanket. Wong shows all of the article portions claimed, with the exception of the dimensions and types of materials that are claimed which are used to make the blanket. It is presumed that the person of ordinary skill in the art would reasonably be expected to know how to use differing types of well known textile materials and how to vary the dimensions of the blanket in order to create a blanket of a desired size made from particular materials similar to the one claimed. Because of this the particular dimensions and materials set forth in claim 1 are considered to be within the ordinary level of skill in the art, and to therefore have been obvious for use to a person of ordinary skill in the art.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Li shows a weighted baby blanket that is of particular interest. Sullivan shows a weighted sleeping bag type blanket that is also of particular interest. McCrory, Hoa, and Ainsworth show multiple layer type blanket assemblies that are of general interest.
